for sale at this office.

GREAT BARGAINS,

Will be sold by the Subscriber, and for a greater part, Extensive Credits will be given, in annual payments, the purchaser giving good bond and security: The following PROPERTY I will sell, from this day forward, (to wit:)

VALUABLE BUILDINGS,

and the Lots of ground they are on, in Paris—they begin at the Main Corner street facing the Court house, and running parallel with the public ground one hundred feet—

The first a large two story frame building, in which there is a large well finished floor house and counting room, both large fire places of brick; the other part well calculated for a tavern, six well finished rooms plastered, and four large fire places; another room, thirty-six feet by twenty, and two fire places, and within five feet of the back room door, a brick loading room, and a kitchen adjoining.

The balance of the building of brick, two stories high; with four houses, twenty feet square, rented out to different families; convenient to those are two small kitchens—there is a stable and small garden for the use of the large buildings. I have also nine acres of out lots in excellent order for cultivation—These buildings were first valued by a number of workmen at eight thousand dollars; and several useful additions have been made to them since—I will now give them extremely low, and give them clear of all incumbrance.

Another property I have in Mason county, one mile and three quarters from Limestone—two valuable overhott mills, in as high credit for manufacturing flour, as any in the state, and are now repairing and almost done, so as to start in complete order when the season for grinding commences, with the best Burr and Alleghany stones, rolling screens &c.—These mills in the season for grinding, can make forty barrels of flour every day that they are worked; and any person inclining to purchase, can be informed, that the quality of the flour is superior to any that has been beaten from Limestone. With these I will sell a valuable negro man, a good miller; the plantation of 140 acres, 100 apple trees, of fruit equal to any in the state, a fine clover and blue grass pasture and meadow, a small dwelling house and farm, with other out houses, cherry and peach orchard—the title indisputable; and I will give it clear of all incumbrance. For this property I have in two years paid nine thousand dollars.

I have also for sale, 700 acres of Military land, fourteen miles from Wallington, North West of the Ohio river, with a very promising salt lick, supposed to have salt water, a small trial has been made, and some salt made by a Mr. Shultz.

I have also two small plantations in Bourbon, that I will sell—they are mostly first rate land.

I have patents for lands near Montgomery court house, of the first quality; eight thousand acres, the half of which I will sell at one third its value; the purchaser may have his choice; patented 17 years ago, entries very special.

Also the half of 600 acres of first quality, three miles from Fleming court house; old patents and special entries—on the same terms.

I have also one thousand acres for sale, adjoining near Mackee's tract, level, but of inferior quality—for this I will take good horses at 60 per acre; the title undoubted.

I have also for sale about 300 acres, on Cedar creek, of Floyd's fork, with a never failing spring on it; a part rich land, and a part indifferent, within six miles of Mann's lick; this has excellent range and timber—for this I will take good salt at 125 per acre, if call 95 per acre.

I have also for sale, six hundred acres, patented land, on Clover lick, eight miles from the Crab orchard—this I will take 35 per acre for in cash, or 45 6d in horses.

If it will be an accommodation to those who may incline to purchase the mills, I will give in an excellent house woman, now living in Lexington.

I will also sell a good stock of hogs, cattle, mares and colts, with the mills. I will give such excellent bargains in all, or any of the aforesaid property, that any person inclinable to purchase, may be well accommodated. The mills I will deliver up the tenth of March next, or if sooner required, on a little more advance, they shall be given up.

Money, good Merchandise, Negroes, and Horses, will be taken by instalments, as will best suit the purchaser.

Application to my son John Edwards, jun. in Bourbon, or to Mr. David S. Brodick, in Wallington, or Mr. Enoch Smith, near Montgomery court house, or James Brown esq. in Lexington, for information and contracts with respect to the property, or to the subscriber, either in Bourbon or Wallington, may be made.

Any of my creditors choosing to purchase, shall have on the lowest terms, as I am determined to sell.

I will sell 1000 barrels of flour, all to be delivered before the 15th of March next. And,

I have also one other plantation for sale, near Warwick, 233 acres cleared, and the title secure.

Any person purchasing the mills I will furnish with wheat at cash price, and will, if employed, engage to clear them in the sales of flour &c. this season, 2500 or 3000 dollars.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

England.

LONDON, September 4.

A flag of truce arrived last night at Dover, with dispatches, and with Paris papers of the 31st ult. They contain not an article of importance.

It is said that a convention was signed at Paris on the 10th of August, with one of the principal powers of Germany (Prussia) by which that power accedes to the principles adapted by France in concert with Austria, upon the subject of the indemnities. The death of the elector of Cologne has certainly rendered the adjustment of this business less difficult than it would have been. There is every reason to believe that Prussia will receive the bishoprics of Munster and Paderborn.

Some disturbances lately broke out in the Prussian state of Poland; they were, however almost instantly suppressed by the military force.

An experiment was lately performed in the presence of the king of Prussia, at Charlottenburgh, which completely succeeded. It consisted in conveying signals in the day time by means of fly-rockets. This is said to be the discovery of M. Neander, a lieutenant in the Royal corps of Artillery, to whom they already owe several useful discoveries.

There never was so great a degree of mortality at Berlin as prevailed from the 2d of April to the 3d of July last. In those three months the deaths amounted to 2365, exceeding the births by the number of 868.

OFFEN, August 12.

A letter from Beccari, in Austrian Croatia, in the Adriatic States, "There arrived a few weeks ago, an English ship at Portore, and a second at Faume, to purchase a great quantity of hemp and flax that had been collected at these ports; different ships, among others a Swede, took this cargo on board to carry it to England; before setting sail, a courier from his imperial majesty, brought to the government of Faume, the order not to let these vessels sail; there arrived a short time after at Portore, a commissary, who placed an embargo on the ships in that port; but the English merchant ship, of 40 guns reinforced by a corral, loaded her guns, and declared that if the measure was not revoked, and if the least military preparations were made on shore to enforce it, she would reduce the town to ashes; this menace, supported by two English frigates one at Faume, and the other at Portore, produced its effect; the embargo was taken off, and the ship was to sail immediately, under convoy of the two English frigates."

PHILADELPHIA, October 22.

We understand that the chamber of commerce of this city, having presented to the president of the United States a remonstrance on the subject of depredations committed and threatened from the Spanish port of Algieras, have received from the office of state, official intimations that the interests of the United States thus suffering, will engage the immediate attention of the president—that he will order without delay the proper representations and demands to be made to the Spanish government; and will take into consideration, with the solicitude due to the object, how far any other measures, within the authority of the Executive, may contribute to arrest the progress of so unwarrantable an aggression on the lawful pursuits of our commerce.

Extract of a letter from Tunis, dated June 1st 1801.

On the 27th ult. entered two corsairs of the government from a cruise, a xebec of 24 twelve pounders, and a corvette of 20 brass nines, which had been boarded and disarmed by a French detachment commanded by vice-admiral Ganthéme. The affair is so novel, so well done, and at the same time so laconic, that it seems worthy of detail. "Who are you?" hailed the republican. "Tunisians" was the answer. "Whom do you cruise against?" "Neapolitans." "What do you not know that the Neapolitans are our friends? Dare you insult the allies of Frenchmen? Overboard in an instant every offensive weapon or I send you to the bottom." The order was promptly obeyed. "Go make the compliments of the first consul to the Bey your master. Tell him it was not his intention to have regarded your breach of faith in renewing the war. You might have remained tranquil and undisturbed at home; but if we find you abroad in search of mischief we deprive you of the means." Tell him to beware of provoking the resentment of the first consul, it will be terrible to him and his country." The admiral wrote to the bey in the same style. His chagrin and mortification may be better imagined than described. There were two of his best cruisers; but the contempt is more grating than the injury done him. He cannot aspire to revenge himself of the French. He dares no more look for prey from Italy. What shall he do? The Americans are a species of Christians somewhat similar in their religion and government to the French, and must therefore expiate the affront. We are now the only nation on earth against whom the Barbary powers can safely cruise; the Spaniards are included in the list of French allies. For these reasons, this example of the French, though it is only one worthy of imitation with these that has happened lately, is extremely prejudicial to our affairs, and its influence instantaneous. Since it took place the Bey has totally changed his tone of treatment."

AN INDIAN PRISONER.

Lately returned from captivity, and now in the State of Kentucky.

NANCY MASON, who says she is the daughter of George Mason, and Mary his wife, formerly Mary Butler, and was born in the State of Maryland, on the east branch of Potomac, five miles from Georgetown; that her father, mother and two sisters were killed on the Ohio river, about 12 years ago, by the Shawanese Indians; that her brother James and self were made prisoners; that her father had sixteen negroes with him, nine of whom were killed, the others she can give no information of. She says her father had a brother, named Isaac, who was owner of iron-works in the neighborhood of Beeson town, in Pennsylvania and that her mother had three brothers whose names were Samuel, James and Nace Butler.

The printers at the city of Washington, are particularly requested, from motives of humanity, to insert this notice, at least three weeks, in their respective gazettes for the information of the friends of this unfortunate woman, who is in need of their assistance. If application is made by any of the friends of this unhappy girl, to judge M'Clung of the town of Washington, in Kentucky, or to the subscriber, near Frankfort, they can obtain directions how to find her.

E. E. GEORGE MADISON, Audr. Pub. Ac'tt.

FROM A PHILADELPHIA PAPER.

TO FARMERS.

On the Manufacturing of WOOLLEN CLOTH.

It is to be lamented, that so little attention has been paid, in this country, to the manufacturing of Woollen Cloth; and, likewise, to the raising of Sheep. These animals are undoubtedly more profitable to farmers than any other; they command the best of pay; and from their wool we may manufacture cloth equal in quality to that for which we have depended on European manufactures, and thereby retain more money in our country.

To make good cloth, farmers should be more attentive to their sheep, and not sell off their best lambs. Sheep should never be yarded with cattle; they should be kept in good flesh, that the wool may be lively, and fed in a rack to constructed that feed and chaff cannot fall from the hay into the wool, for those essentially injure it. After sheep are washed, they should not be shorn in less than six days, that the animal oil may penetrate the pores of the wool; this oil preserves the wool alive, and keeps it pliable.

In this country, suitable attention has not been paid to the sorting of wool. In European manufactories, the fleece is divided into five or six sorts from fine to coarse. The best wool grows from the kidneys over the shoulders to the neck; this should be used for the finest of cloth; the remainder should be divided for the various uses for which it may be designed. By this sorting the wool, there will be no waste; but by mixing fine and coarse in the same piece, the cloth cannot be dressed handsome, nor do half the service it otherwise would. All coarse ends should be cut off, if they be spun and wove into cloth, no colour can be impressed on it either clear or even, for fine and coarse wool will not equally receive any colour. After wool is sorted, it should be carefully pulled apart, and all the nobs be taken out—when it is well picked, one pound of soft fat or hog's lard to seven of wool should be well mixed. After it is rendered soft and pliable by the grease, it should be well broke with good cards—then again pulled apart and well mixed together. Let one person spin the wool, that the yarn be equally wrought, the filling should be spun with the wheel cross-drawed. Let the wool be kept clean from dirt or lint while spinning; and cleanse the yarn before it is wove. Avoid old harness in weaving, for their lint, &c. essentially injure the cloth—be careful to beat equally, for if one part of a sink be beat closer than the other, the cloth will cockle—to avoid this, it would be well able to weave each skein by itself—make a good selvage and trim as you weave. If all knots are not cut off with shears before the cloth is fulled, they are picked out with tweezers by the clothier, leaving holes in the cloth which injure it.

When cloth is made in conformity to these directions, there is no danger of its working bad in the mill; it will not cockle but be dressed neatly. If a number of hands be employed in spinning a piece, you may expect the cloth will cockle in the mill; and such can never be dressed to appear decently. Some people, who procured in this manner, complain of the clothier, because their cloth does not answer their expectation; and I am told that one of the professions in this vicinity who pretends to be master of an art of dressing cloth without cockling it, has declared (most probably for the mean purpose of injuring the reputation of his neighboring clothiers) that they can always avoid it. If wool be not properly manufactured by the cards, wheel, and loom, it is impossible for any clothier to dress it even decently. All cloths that are not to be fulled, should be spun from fine wool, well mixed, or they will not equally receive colours.

People would do well to make their cloth earlier in the season than usual.—September and October are the most favorable months for dressing cloth. It is much better to be dressed in warm weather than in cold.

Many of our farmers will get their wool and buy foreign cloth for common wear.—This wool is exported to Europe, there manufactured, brought back, and sold here at an extravagant price. Thus for want of good economy, their clothing cost double the sum it otherwise would. If these directions are followed, permanent colours chosen, and the clothier does his duty, American cloths will be elegant and durable, and the farmers handsomely rewarded for their trouble.

Owing to an omission in transcribing, we were not furnished with copies of two of the speeches delivered by Col. Smith to the Indians;—we have since received them, and in this day's paper present them to our readers.

Great Rock, August the 24th, 1801.

FRIENDS & BROTHERS: I do not look upon it strange, that you think it hard to quit your old custom, of word of mouth instruction; and by figures and marks in some measure significant, made by different coloured beads, on belts of wampum.—I know that old customs are very strong and not easy laid aside; still I think it reasonable, to be always trying to change old customs for new ones, when we see that the new is the best way of doing business. When our forefathers came in ships, not very long ago, they found your forefathers clothed in skins, and hunting with bows and arrows, and working with stone tomahawks, knives and wooden hoes, in this great country which they had newly found.—At this time, did your forefathers say, we will not change the way that God in his government hath put us? No, they took to hunting with guns, and wearing blankets and other clothes; and laid aside their stone tomahawks, knives and wooden hoes, and took iron in the place thereof.

FRIENDS & BROTHERS: Your forefathers did not, in my opinion, make as good a change when they laid aside their stone tomahawks and knives, and made use of iron, as you would make, if you would change your old way, of only word of mouth instruction, and wampum, for reading and writing.—Why did your forefathers make the above mentioned change? Because they saw the benefit thereof. But it is not so easy for you to see the benefit of reading and writing, because you cannot read and write yourselves, and therefore, cannot rightly know what it is. I did know your way of conveying your thoughts to each other, and I know what it is to read and write—therefore it is we do not see one way on this subject. As for religion, I did not persuade you to any one sort of religion—I wish you to learn to read the book of God, and as freemen, to judge for yourselves, as God in his goodness, has given you very strong thinking powers. You tell me that the spirit of God has been working wonderfully upon the hearts of many of your people.—Perhaps his spirit may continue to work stronger, and stronger as it hath been the case with many of our people—and you may be bewildered and benighted, and come into a dark place, where you cannot see the path, as many of our people do.—If I should be the safe friend for me, and if I am alive and well, I will come and visit you again, and bring some of the old praying men with me.—Perhaps God may enable us to light a candle so that you may go on rejoicing in God with gladness of heart, as many of our people have done by this means. If you wish to see me again, send a letter to Mr. Zeen's, and I will perhaps soon get it from that place. As I have at your request left a copy of Governor Garrard's passport recommendation, all the speeches that you heard in your council house, and this address with Mr. Brown and Mr. Walker, there is one request I have to make, that is, I wish you to cause these papers to be all read yearly, at your yearly feasts, or at any other time yearly, that suits you, and think upon them.—If you do this, I think you will see and say after I am dead and gone from this world, that old man that came so far to visit us, at the great rock, was a real friend to the Indians. I thank you for the kind reception I met with in your Council House. If I should never see you again, I will pray to God for you while I live.—I thank God that I have seen the Wiamdoots once more, and that I have talked, and eat and smoked with them in their Council House, in a kind and friendly manner, and I thank you all for the kind usage I have received from you all, in every place I have been since I came among you on this visit. May God in his great goodness be and remain with you all. Amen.

The following speech I also left with Mr. Brown & Mr. Walker—As there is to be held at the Great Rock, which is the council place, or the state house for the different nations—And the great council of the nations is to be held there this fall:—

To the different nations of Indians inhabiting the North-West side of the Ohio.

FRIENDS & BROTHERS:

Though the Wiandotas were the first that I met with, and the only people I have had an opportunity of speaking with in Council, in a national capacity, yet the speeches that I have left with the Wiandotas, at the Council fire place for the different nations, at the Great Rock, is for all or any of the nations that will accept of the proposals contained therein. I am &c.

AN ADDRESS

To the STUDENTS, delivered by the Revd. JAMES MOORE, principal of the Transylvania University, at the commencement of the winter session, 1801.

YOUNG GENTLEMEN,

As you are now about entering upon the business of the ensuing session, we have thought it proper to address a few observations to you.—The approbation which the trustees have been pleased, on several occasions, to express of our examinations and other exercises, must have been highly gratifying to you, as it encourages us to hope that you will endeavour to merit such approbation on all future occasions. For a youth to be careless whether he acquires himself honourably, in the progress of his studies, would be a most unpromising symptom indeed: but you have proved yourselves to be of a different character:—you have been emulous to excel. If indeed you have a just sense of the importance of learning, you can never be negligent students:—and as your success depends upon steady persevering application, you should endeavour to cultivate a high sense of the dignity of the learned character. To be ambitious of true wisdom and useful knowledge is an indication of a great and manly soul:—but to become wise and learned requires both time, & diligence in the use of the means. Be resolved therefore that you will prosecute your studies, in every part of learning, with eagerness & attention.—Remember, that even enthusiasm in the pursuits of science is not only justifiable, but commendable. Never be satisfied with a partial or superficial course of education: nor listen to the suggestions of ignorance or indolence to induce you to pass over any thing, which may tend to refine and enlarge the powers of your minds. It is natural for those who have learned but little themselves, to discourage learning in others; that their own ignorance may be kept in countenance:—but the young man who regards the advice of those who are ignorant of the subjects, on which they would presume to advise, is unworthy of the name of a student, and is not likely to leave the vulgar walks of life.—Be come well acquainted with every part of a liberal education, and then judge of its importance for yourselves. On these subjects let no man judge for you. This will teach you to pity the ignorant, to despise the pedant, and to reverse the friends and patrons of all liberal learning —Be not discouraged at meeting with difficulties. Youth is the age of enterprise and achievement, and the mind of man is capable of great exertions. "Nil mortalius arduum est." Every student should be persuaded that what others before him have learned he is capable of learning; and should deem it humiliating, in the last degree, to complain, or stop short at apparent difficulties, which thousands have already surmounted. We should not have to complain, we hope, of your perseverance, diligence and attention.

But whilst you proceed in your learning be attentive to your manners. Consider what that department is, which becomes a student in the Transylvania University, and never disgrace your name. Learning without virtue will never recommend you to the esteem of mankind, nor render you happy in yourselves.—Cultivate incessantly therefore, habits of order, humanity, generosity, and good breeding. Show the world that, by being here, you have already learned enough to despise vice and disorder in all their forms.—Never be seen in bad company, nor suffer yourselves to associate with idle trifling young men or boys.—Consider your time as your most precious treasure, and let the hours of study be held sacred. In this manner you will most successfully at the same time, pursue your studies, and procure the esteem of your teachers, and all the wife and good.—Be kind affectionate and forgiving towards one another.—Let us never hear of quarrelling or falling out among yourselves.—It is disgraceful in all ranks of men, but particularly in students, who should live together as brethren of the same family.—To be ever ready to see and resent little apparent offences, discovers a mind occupied by trifles, and fostering evil passions.—The youth, who is easily offended, and often angry soon comes to be despised amongst his fellow-students and avoided by all who know him.—To forgive an injury is magnanimous; but to resent imaginary offences is meanness itself, and betrays littleness of soul.—Be the last, therefore to give, or take offence, and the first to promote harmony and peace.—Worship God with a pure heart,—reverence your parents,—be obedient to your teachers, and gentle, polite and obliging to all, with whom you have intercourse.

We shall spare no pains to give you the best instructions on the various subjects, which may come before you.—It were to be wished that our philosophical apparatus was more complete, than it is; but we have no doubt the trustees will make it so, so that as their finances will admit of it. You will be much benefitted by the use of what we have, when aided by the faithful instructions of a diligent professor.

Be not wanting to yourselves.—Let us always see you here at the appointed hours, prepared for whatever exercises your teachers may have prescribed.

Follow our advice and instructions—persevere, and you will do well.—you will be qualified for promoting the happiness of society, will deserve well of your country, and recommend this University to the confidence and patronage of the nation.

BY YESTERDAY'S MAIL.

LONDON, September 6.

The three great points in the neutral question, which has happily been adjusted by the treaty of Russia, were—that "free bottoms made free goods"—the contraband of war—and the right of search under convoy. The first of these, and that which was most strongly insisted upon by the Northern Confederacy, has now been completely abandoned, as the property of an enemy on board a neutral ship is acknowledged by the treaty to be a lawful prize. The articles to be deemed contraband of war are limited and defined; but it is to be observed that in our treaties with Russia, in 1796 and 1797, naval stores were not included. We have here acted upon precise treaties, and these must also be our guide when we come to a final settlement with Denmark and Sweden. With respect to the right of search, it is very properly restricted to the king's ships which are first to examine the papers of the convoying vessel, and are not to detain any particular ship, "unless there appears a reasonable ground of suspicion." In return for this free and fair concession we have obtained a security against the abuse so frequently practised on neutral flags, as no vessel is to be considered as the property of the country whose flag it carries, unless the captain of the ship, and one half of the crew at least, are the subjects of that country.

If any person can suppose that two much has been conceded with respect to the right of search, we shall resort to an evidence certainly not partial, and give

Mr. Fox's opinion on the subject. In his speech of the 25th of March last he says, "The only difficulty would be which to consider as most monstrous—a neutral attending to the right of supplying one belligerent with means of mischief to another—or a belligerent inflicting upon an universal right of search in all cases, and making innocent commerce the sport of its whim, in express contempt of specific regulation. It is between these extremes that the general interest of the commonwealth of nations finds the true equitable medium." It is precisely on that medium between the two extremes that we conceive the present treaty to be founded.

PHILADELPHIA, October 27.

TOUSSAINT LOUVERTE,

Governor of St. Domingo.

To all Civil and Military Officers.

Cape Francois, 28 Fructidor,

Year 9.

Citizens,

As I have been informed, that captains of foreign vessels, after carrying away by force or seduction, young citizens of the colony, have been so bold as to tell them in the United States, it is the duty of every public officer to prevent, by the most strict attention, such wicked attempts from being renewed for the future.

I have received advices, importing, that citizen Abraham in the Cape, a Creole of the plantation called Des Dames, was conducted to Wilmington: that after having been put on shore, he was taken away into the back country, where he was going to be sold, when he was claimed by a Frenchman and sent back to Cape Francois, on board the schooner Two Sisters. The same citizen informs me, that a young black man named Bouhomme, a Creole, and Taylor of Cape Francois, was sold in this manner, a few years ago in Charleston, and that he is in quest of him. To these positive facts he adds others, the proofs of which he is trying to obtain.

In consequence of this information, you are sensible how great your zeal ought to be, to prevent such piratical attempts for the future. There is no doubt but there are among the captains who trade to this colony, some mean and barbarous enough to deal in the destiny of their fellow creatures, to carry them far from their country and liberty, and reduce them to slavery.

Therefore, it is ordered that all public officers inform me of the abuses that may be committed in that matter; and that commanders, in leopards go with a municipal officer on board of those vessels ready to fail, and make a strict visit to all persons on board; and if there are citizens not included in the crew's list, to have them disembarked, unless they produce a passport signed by me; to stop the vessel, and give me immediate notice thereof, so as I may order to be brought before a council of war, captains known to be guilty, in order that they should be prosecuted to the utmost extent of the laws.

Salute and fraternity,
Toussaint Louverture.

October 30.

Joshua Humphreys, esq. naval architect for the United States, in this city, has been removed. We understand however, that no successor will be appointed, as it is the pleasure of the president to abolish the office.

BOSTON, October 24.

Mr. John Appleton, the official bearer of the ratified treaty between the U. States and France, arrived here yesterday in the brig Reward from Dieppe.

BALTIMORE, October 24.

A letter received at Trenton, from an officer on board the United States frigate Philadelphia, dated off Gibraltar, August 10, 1801, states, that the Philadelphia was still cruising off Gibraltar, in hopes that the Tripolitans would come out, who, however, shew no disposition to venture a meeting with our countrymen: it is also stated, by the writer, that they had just spoken a Swedish vessel, which informed that the Dey of Tripoli had declared war against Sweden. It is probable, if this is true, that the petty tyrant of Tripoli will soon have enough to do to protect himself in his own capital, without sending his piratical cruizers abroad to rob the defenceless merchantmen navigating the Mediterranean.

SALEM, October 5.

News from the Red Sea.

Arrived here on Saturday, ship Recovery, capt. Dana, (Mr. Robinson supercargo) in 118 days from the Moka at the mouth of the Red Sea. The Recovery left Moka on the 22d of June, and brings the following intelligence;—that a very large fleet of British transport ships had gone up the Red Sea with troops; it was impossible to ascertain the exact number of men employed; some accounts stated the number at 8000 men—there were several European regiments, and the remainder were the native Sepoys of the East Indies.

The expedition was supposed to have employed upwards of 100 sail of large country ships—the grand fleet entered the Red Sea in April, but one division of 20 ships, arrived late in May. Before the Recovery failed from Moka, news had been received there that the army had landed at Colfere and Suez, as little or no opposition could be made. The English had also taken possession of an island at the head of the Red Sea, and used it for a depot for their stores. All was hurry and bustle at Moka, where the British had commissaries to purchase provisions and supplies for the troops. The frigate La Forte had been lost in the Red Sea, by striking on a reef of rocks near Judda. Colonel Popham, from the Cape of Good Hope had joined the army. The English had very few men of war, and it was said that these intended to sail to cruise off the coast of Brazil.

SACRED TO THE MUSES.

TWO HEADS BETTER THAN ONE.

A Cautionary Tale for the Unwary.

AS Yorkshire Humphrey, 'tother day,
O'er London bridge was stumping,
He saw with wonder and delight,
The water works a-pumping.

Numps gazing stood, and wonder'd how
This grand machine was made,
To flash his eyes, he thrust his head
Betwixt the ball-valve.

A sharper, prowling near the spot,
Gleed'd the gaping lot;
And loon with his look fingers turns
His pocket inside out.
Numps felt the twitch, and turns around,
The thief, with awful frown,
Says, "Sir, you'll presently be rob'd'd,
For pickpockets are near."

Quoth Numps, "I don't fear London thieves,
'Tis not a simple youth I am;
My guinea, measter, 's my elf now,
'I've put in my mouth I!"
"You'll pardon me," the rogue replies,
Then modestly retires;
Numps re-assumes his gaping polly,
And fill the water adorns.

The artful purveyor takes his stand,
With Humphrey fill in view;
And now an infant thief drew near,
And each the other knew.

When first the elder thief began,
"Observe that gaping lot;
He has a guinea in his mouth,
And we must get it out."

"Leave that to me," young slyther says
"I have a scheme quite put;
Only observe how nat 'I'll queer
That gaping country fat!"

By this time Numps had gazed his fill,
Was trudging through the street,
When the young purveyor, tripping by,
Falls prostrate at his feet.

"O dear! O dear! my money's lost!"
The artful urchin means,
While half-pence, falling from his hand,
Roll jingling o'er the stones.

The passengers now stop to find
And give the boy his coin,
And Humphrey with his friendly hand
Most cordially does join.

"There is thy pence," quoth Numps, "my boy,
"Be sure thou keep'st 'em close;
My pence!" quoth Numps, "here is my pence,
"But where's my guinea, matter!"

"Help, help! good folks, for God's sake help!"
Davis out the hope of youth;
"He pick'd my guinea up just now,
"And has it in his mouth!"

The elder thief was lurking near,
Now close to help his gain;
And sitting by the guinea, plucks
The guinea from his jaws!

Then roars out, "Masters, here's the coin,
"I'll give the child his guinea;
"But who'd have thought to see a thief
"In this same country niny!"

Humphrey, astonish'd thus begins,
"Good masters, hear me, now;
"But 'duck him, duck him!' is the cry;
"At length he sneaks away."

"And now," quoth Numps, "I will believe
"What often I've heard say;
"That London thieves will steal the teeth
"Out of a body's head."

ANECDOTE.

A GOOD SPEC.

A young Lady in London, who was handsome and had a fortune of twelve thousand pounds, while she was buying some trifling article from an acquaintance took a piece of Flanders' lace, and, out of mere gaudy and frolic, went haughty out, without paying him for it. The shopkeeper who had a good head for speculation, followed and seized her, and charged her with the theft; and in a serious and peremptory manner, said to her "Miss you may take your choice, either to go with me before a magistrate and suffer the penalty of the law for stealing my lace, or to go with me before a clergyman and marry me." After a short pause, (and who could blame her?) she chose the latter.
